

The loss of political trust – a threat to democracy?

WHEN	Wednesday 2 April 6pm - 7:30pm
WHERE	The Rees Hotel
HOW	Register via Catalyst's HUMANITIX PAGE Koha to Happiness House

Shock election results and threats to democratic values across the western world reflect “a febrile, restive mood and an alarming loss of political trust among some voters,” high-profile political commentator Max Rashbrooke says.

His Catalyst Kōrero will look at what’s causing these global trends, their potential impacts on democracy here and abroad – and how political trust might be restored.

Rashbrooke is the founder of a new think-tank, IDEA (Institute for Democratic and Economic Analysis) and a senior research fellow at Victoria University.
